THOUSANDS OF DUCKS KILLED BY HUNTERS

Possession of Lakes and Sloughs.

Notwithstanding the thousands of ducks flying in the air Friday morning, the opening of the season in Utah, there were two hunters to every duck. The report that ducks were plentiful brought out port that ducks were plentiful brought out every man and boy that could carry a gun, and it can safely be said that from the mouth of the Jordan river to the point of the mountain, at the south end of the Sait Lake valley, there was not an acre of open ground west of the Jordan river upon which was not antioned from three to four hunters. Behind every large sage brush, behind fence poles or any obstacle that afforded protection from the keen eye of the duck, was stationed an enthusiastic hunter.

When the morning finally broke, the bombardment began, and in less than half an hour the air was filled with powder smoke. There was no possible escape.

Horses and Horsemen

Today's card at Euena Vista will not have the military flavor to it that it was expected to have. Neither the officers' race nor the six-furious handlean will ingure in the afternoon's sport. The latter, which, with its great list of nominations gave promise of drawing out a star field, secured only five acceptances, and Glorio, the horse which frightened the others out, was not among them. I star field, secured only five acceptances, and Glorio, the horse which frightened the others out, was not among them J. W. Bauer, who has the esteem of racing secretarios wherever he has raced, because of the fact that he always accepts for Little Osage, left his good spillner in, and the others which remained were Ethon, Miles, Lord Nelson and Yoha. As Ethon and Miles would figure as an entry there were virtually only four entries, and either of these could be scratched, which would leave only four entries, and either of these could be scratched, which would leave only four starters at the most. It was desired best, under the ctreumstances, to declare the race off. As regards the officers' race, Colonel Scott, after giving his sanction to it, finally decided that he would rather not have the officers under him participate in a public race, and, out of deference to his wishes, the race was abandored. The club had gone to considerable expense in purchasing a silver leving cup and having it suitably engraved, to be presented to the rider of the winning horse in addition to the $150 purse.

Yuba's race of yestering, in which she gave weight and a heating to good sprinters of the older division in one of the fastest-run races of the meeting, served to strengthen the notion hold by many that there was something wrong about the race of Wednezday, when Miles beat lar.

J. Henry, who has been incapacitated for riding for more than a week, made his reappearance in the saddle yesterday on Clopton's horses, Madeline Musgrave and Merlingo, but the best he could do with either was to land in second place.

Favorites took just half the purses hung up yesterday, but, with good breaks in the other events, the bookmakers had their first good afternoon since the opening day. The break did not come too soon, for the public has made great inroads into the bank rolls of the layers and just about had some of them on the ropes.
